Drama Season Opens Tonight

Richard Thiede, as Darry Berrill, and Peter Saputo,as Berry Derrill rehearse a scene from Sean O'Casey's 'The End of the Beginning."

Three One-Act Plays Included In Bill at Roosevelt Auditorium

The curtains will open at 8:00 tonight at Roosevelt Auditorium on the EMC Players' first production of the season, a bill of one-act plays. The program will be repeated on Friday and Saturday evenings. Both single admission tickets and season coupon books will be on sale at the door.

Three distinguished authors are represented on the one-act play bill. Edna St. Vincent Millay's "Aria Da Capo" is a fantasy that examines some of man's follies in a tragi-comic vein. Featured in the cast are Karen Boesen, Louis Pearl, Bill Dobkin, Joe DelGiudice, and Joe Dennis. The play has been directed by David Meneghel with the assistance of Edith Tansley.

In "The Happy Journey," Thornton Wilder presents a picture of American family life. The author's penetrating character observations combine with everyday happenings and the result is a play that speaks with simple eloquence. Director Ronald Muchnick's cast includes Sue Anne Burris, Mary Ellen Tindall, Nancy Raker, Fredric Germaine, John Newberg, and Ronald Mikesell. Nancy Jo Brooks served as assistant director.

The third play is Sean O'Casey's riotous farce, "The End of the Beginning." The situation centers around the misguided attempts of an Irish farmer to take over his wife's household duties. Richard Thiede, Judith Krauss and Peter Saputo will be seen in the play's three roles. Director Jerry Tewmey has been assisted by Sheila Gnifke.

The current bill marks the Players' farewell to Roosevelt Auditorium. The three major productions which remain will be presented in the new Quirk Theatre.

STUDENT REVIEWS PLAY:

"Look Back In Anger" Is a Striking Play of Social Problems

by Douglas Brown

Several EMC students attended the matinee performance of John Osborne's play in three acts, "Look Back In Anger," as presented by the English Stage Company recently at Cass Theatre in Detroit.

The drama centers around the lives of the three principal charactors, Jimmy Porter (Kenneth Haigh). his wife Alison (Diana Hyland), and their friend Cliff Lewis (Al Muscari), who share a simple two-room house.

Jimmy, as a young intellectual forced to live a life of low class isolation and stagnacy, looked down upon by middle-road, middle-class conservatives, verbally lashes out at contemporary seciety. His most intimate acquaintance with this diseased society is his own wife, the protected daughter of well-to-do parents.

Cliff, as a far less outspoken exponent of the beat generation, serves as the angry young man.

The situation becomes unbearable for Alison, who, although convinced of Jimmy's need for her, fears his reaction to her pregnancy. When Helena Charles (Elizabeth Hubbard) visits her, she is all too easily convinced to go home to her parents and find "some peace." Left alone with a very angry Jimmy, who intensely hates the religion and society she represents, Helena slaps his face, then embraces the suddenly disconsolate figure.

Act III opens with a scene strikingly similar to that of the first act, but Helena has replaced the departed Alison, who suddenly returns after her pregnancy developed into a miscarriage. Although Alison claims she did not return to take Jimmy from her, Helena decides to leave. Love has failed to assuage the guilt she feels in her heart.

Now that Cliff has left to find a wife and life of his own, the play comes to a swift conclusion as Alison faces Jimmy alone and pours out her suffering to him, her life no longer protected—"This is what you want, Jimmy!" His anger again turned to compassion, he consoles the stricken girl, while fondling a symbolic teddy bear and a stuffed squirrel, reassuring her they will be happy together.

John Osborne has written an entertaining, sometimes compassionate portrayal of the beat generation. That is not to say this is bad. In revealing the innermost passions of each of the principal characters, he has given the viewer an insight into the convictions of a large segment of our generation.

Although the conclusion of the performance left some doubt as to the intention of the author, John Osborne has proved himself capable of handling symbolism and psychological character sketches. It will be interesting to see what he next presents.

Huron Highlights

by . . . . Bill Forster

The impotent Eastern Michigan Hurons were victims of a sixty-five yard touchdown pass in the last three minutes of their conflict last Saturday with the Southern Illinois Salukis, and lost 13-9.

It is almost worthless to survey this contest. It is so like the others that writing a story on it is almost being redundant. A good defense and a sub-par offense, two very clear characteristics of the Huron eleven, were present once again. An indication of the sub-par offense is the figure of thirteen yards gained on the ground for the entire game.

Many considered the offense capable of accumulating two touchdowns after the welcome return of Al Day (who had retired voluntarily in a quite peculiar fashion, Monday of last week.) This did not happen, however.

Eastern definitely is blessed with the "big guns" necessary to provide a winner. John Malone and Jerry Wedge have proven themselves in past seasons. What the Hurons lack is a major question to both EMC fans and Coach Trosko.

The passing attack demonstrated by the Hurons was quite sufficient and made up for some of the loss in prestige by the Eastern running backs.

Whether the EMC squad will now perk up offensively or not is a real question. Certainly, the pressure of repeating as IIAC champions is off. Maybe the Hurons will try to have some fun for a change against Northern Illinois this Saturday. Of course, there is only one way to find out an answer—that is, for the people interested to watch the ball game.

TICKET EXCHANGE

Student coupons may be exchanged at Bowen Fieldhouse on Thursday and Friday from 1 to 5 for Saturday's football game with Northern Illinois.

Huron's Await Huskie Invasion Saturday Afternoon

Northern Illinois University will provide the conference action for Eastern Michigan this Saturday and the Hurons will be hoping to come back into competition for second place in the IIAC with a win over Northern.

Northern Illinois presently holds a won-lost record of 3-3-0, identical to that of Eastern Michigan. In conference competition the Huskies have a 1-3 record in conference play consisting of a 24-12 win over Eastern Illinois and losses of 38-7 to Western Illinois, 33-23 to Central Michigan and 33-19 to Illinois Normal University. Northern has been paced by the work of topnotch quarterback Lou Flinn who can order a deadly passing attack or a sometimes devastating running game. Northern has proven to be erratic thus for, however, with strong appearances one weekend and rather weak showings the next. They made Central Michigan go into the last few minutes of play to emerge with a 33-23 victory but then lost to Illinois Normal by a 33-19 score. Still, the Huskies must be considered dangerous to any team in the conference and it could certainly prove to be the downfall of the Hurons this season.

Coach Fred Trosko, anxious for another conference win, hopes that the squad may finish the season in second place in conference play. Only with a complete turn-a-bout in conference action could the Hurons prove first place contenders again this year. Trosko's squad leads the league in defensive work, having held the opposition to an average of 127.7 yards per game. On the other hand the squad rates only fifth in the conference for total offensive action having picked up an average of 264.7 yards per game. The squad lacks the one or two leaders needed to carry a backfield to a dangerous offensive attack. Only fullback John Malone rates among the top ten in rushing. He is presently in tenth place with 161 yards in 38 carries good for a 4.2 yards per carry average.

Trosko has tried many combinations but the squad still lacks the real backfield power of last season. Still, Eastern remains feared by league competition on the basis of its strong showings against Central Michigan, Youngstown University and Eastern Illinois.

The Class A, B, and C-D State Cross Country Finals will be held in Ypsilanti this weekend for the 37th consecutive year.

IIAC SPOTLIGHT

The Panthers of Eastern Illinois University have their work cut out for them this weekend as they host the Central Michigan Chippewas, present leaders of the IIAC. The Panthers will be rated as sound underdogs, especially when one recalls that Central will be rebounding from a humiliating 40-0 defeat at the hands of the U. of Louisville. Eastern has an improved club this season but thus far has managed only a 1-5 overall record and a 0-4 conference tabulation. Central Michigan now carries a 6-1 overall and a 3-0 conference record.

In other action within the conference upcoming Illinois State Normal University will entertain strong Western Illinois University. Illinois Normal is presently riding the crest of a two game winning streak after a disappointing four game losing streak. The Normal Redbirds have a 2-4 overall and a 2-2 conference tab. Western toppled Eastern Illinois wast weekend by a 30-0 score and will prove more than competition for the Redbirds. Western holds a 3-1-1 overall record and has third place in the conference tied down with a 2-1 record.

In non-conference action Southern Illinois University will entertain Washington & Lee in homecoming festivities. Southern is presently in second place in the conference with a 3-1 record and a 5-1 overall.

If these statistics possess any value, they surely indicate the all-around strength that the IIAC possesses this year.

Record Dash Not Enough as Harriers Bow

Although Eastern Michigan's cross country team fell to Miami University of Ohio 22-33 in last Saturday's meet, Mauri Jormakka, Huron pacesetter, set a new course record with the time of 20:32. The old record of 21:02.4 was established by John Stearns of Marquette University in 1950 during the Central Collegiates.

While Jormakka placed first, Miami grabbed the next four places for the winning margin.

Gurney Beach came in sixth, followed by Doug Carroll. Don Taylor and Howard Reindal finished ninth and tenth, respectively, to complete the scoring for the Hurons.

Coach George Marshall remarked that a heavy track and lack of experience by the freshmen handicapped the EMC squad. This was the first dual meet defeat for the Hurons this season.

Meet the Hurons

by Bob Quick

Brian Dunn

Brian, England's contribution to the present Huron squad, was born in Plymouth of that nation. As a youth he moved to Norwood, Massachusetts where he starred in football as an All-State and participated in basketball and track.

The 5' 10", 190 pound fullback believes that the Hurons this year have been victims of bad breaks. He claims that the team will have aroused spirits following their loss to Southern and will really indicate the results of their potential, this Saturday.

Looking to the Huron future, in which Brian as a junior will have a big part; he has high hopes, but believes that the team will be losing a great deal of strength in both line and backfield.

An active member of Phi Sigma Epsilon social fraternity, Brian has a lot of fun both on and off the field. A couple of incidents indicating this are the protecting of his "little buddy" Jack Gerson (who is really quite capable of taking care of himself); and his constantly finding himself on the losing end of bets for coffee with Fred Kessler, the big Huron lineman.

Brian is a physical education major and is minoring in health. Look for his bone-crushing blocking and effective line-plunging this Saturday.

Jerry Wedge

This 5'10", 170 pound senior hails from Birmingham, Michigan, where he quarterbacked his high school team for four years. He also participated in three other sports.

Jerry is twenty-two years old and is married. His spouse is expecting another Wedge this coming February. Not having entered the armed services yet, Jerry is hoping to postpone this facet of life.

Wedge has been and is at present one of the most versatile backs ever to wear a Huron uniform. He has played both quarterback and halfback with equal efficiency. Jerry also is a good punter, and besides that, he is presently the favorite pass-receiver for the Huron passers. One could expound for quite a while on Jerry's many exploits as he also has been quite a fixture on recent Eastern baseball teams.

Jerry is a Physical Education major and has no real hobbies with the exception of his present distraction, football. The backfield of next year will find a big hole to fill after Jerry's departure.

State Finals
